

No Live Work Policy

The companies of ARA Electrical have an obligation to ensure the health, safety, and welfare of all workers and others at their place of work.

ARA Electrical has adopted the policy that no “live work” shall be carried out, unless:

- a. in an emergency situation and the risk of harm would be greater if the circuits and apparatus were de-energised before work commenced, in which case risk assessment analysis with appropriate control measures must be completed,
- b. authorised under the Electricity Supply (Safety and Network Management) Regulation 2014. This regulation specifically pertains to electricity supply authority requirements and specific training and employee certification.

Under no circumstances are workers to place themselves at risk when dealing with electricity. Testing and isolation procedures must be adhered to and where there is any doubt, documented risk assessment analysis and the implementation of appropriate control measures must be adopted.

This policy must be adhered to by all workers to ensure safety in the workplace.

Any breach in adhering to this policy may result in disciplinary action.

Brett Chambers
Managing Director
15th January 2018